

J. Perren Cobb Award

J. Perren Cobb, MD, FCCM, founded the Chapter to promote interdisciplinary innovation in critical care. The SCCM SoCal Chapter honors his contributions through this annual award that celebrates investigative achievement. To be eligible, a Chapter member must submit a research abstract to the SCCM Southern California Annual Symposium focused on innovative interdisciplinary research. Specifically, an awardee will be selected based on a project that focuses on interprofessional collaboration between critical care professionals, supports emerging science in the applicant's specialty, demonstrates excellence based on the submission's score, and demonstrates the work's importance to critically ill patients and families.

Eligibility:

- Must be a member of the Chapter.
- Submit an abstract to the Chapter's Annual Symposium
- Cannot be a previous winner.
- Cannot be a current Chapter Officer, Chapter Board of Directors member, or Chapter Committee Chair or Chair-elect.

Review Criteria

- At least two disciplines must be involved in the work under review, spanning Departments (e.g., Medicine and Anesthesiology, or Surgery and Microbiology) or disciplines (e.g., nursing and pharmacy, or physician providers and physical therapy)
- Support emerging science in the applicant's specialty.
- Demonstrate excellence based on the submission's score.
- Demonstrate the importance of the work to critically ill patients and families.

Time Cycle

- Applications are due using the SCCM SoCal webpage by August 20, 2024
- Selected projects, and authors, will be chosen and notified by September 20, 2024.
- Recipients are highly encouraged to use their award-winnings to attend the SCCM Congress.

Scoring Details

Top scoring abstract using the scoring rubric on the abstract submission page

Application Process

Submission of an abstract to the Annual symposium with an expression of interest in the form.

Financial details

The award will be an amount of $2000 (W9 needed)